Return legs in knockout rounds or final matches in group phases often lend them selves successfully to this tactic.

Even "better", though logically, also more risky, would be if the fav orite loses that first set.

In other words, if the game is close a live bet on a goal being scored in the f inal minute makes a lot of sense.

If you then place a bet on the favorite, your live sure bet will be practically perfect!

When strategizing live bets, is it better to keep an eye on one match or several

? This is a controversial question, one that divides the betting community like no other.

Many advise vehemently against following a single match, since you often end up wishing for a certain result or thing to happen, losing the necessary objectivi ty as well as the rapid responsiveness that live betting requires.
